DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 2, and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Bertrand (U.S. 5,387,158). Bertrand discloses a recreational slide having a base and top surface to facilitate sliding thereon, the top surface being characterized with low friction (as best understood) sheeting layer which enables the user to traverse the slide when it is wet or dry, and means for (69) introducing water to the top surface of the slide. Referring to claim 2, Bertrand teaches a base as well as the top surface of the slide being inclined. Referring to claim 17, Bertrand teaches a hose (69) which serves as a pump to pump out water onto the top surface of the slide.

3. Claims 1, 3, 5, 6-8, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Butsook (U.S. 6,062,983). Referring to claim 1, Butsook teaches a slide (12) having a base and a top surface, the top surface being characterized by a low friction (durable plastic) which enables the user to traverse both when the top surface is wet and dry (one can walk on the slide when it is dry if they so choose), and means for introducing water (26). Referring to claims 3 and 5, Butsook teaches the slide can be inflated, thereby providing an inherent bouncy surface. Referring to claims 6-7, Butsook teaches in column 4, lines 12-15 means for maintaining inflation of the slide, and therefore allows the slide to be deflated. Referring to claim 8, Butsook discloses a durable plastic layer. Referring to claim 88, use of the device in sub-zero temperatures would result in the introduction of snow/ice to the surface of the slide.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.
5. Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Butsook. Limitations drawn to the specific material used are considered a matter of obvious design choice. Note that Butsook teaches using durable plastic, and nylon, and polyester resins are durable plastics.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. Examiner respectfully points out that the subject matter of claim 1 is not supported by the specification of 09/344,302 as the application does not discuss a slide with means for introducing water. Therefore the effective date is the filing date of the CIP. (See MPEP 2133.01). Applicant's claims remain broad in nature. The phrase 'enables the user to traverse there on both when said top surface is wet and dry' is broad. So long as the prior art is capable, the limitations will be met. In the case of Butsook, Examiner has attempted to parlay the broadness of the claims.

Conclusion

7. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
